

CareGuard's Protection of Accounts

Ametros is the largest administrator in the country and takes its responsibility to maintain the security of its member's accounts very seriously. We manage thousands of individual accounts for our CareGuard members. Ametros' security protocols have been vetted by multiple Fortune 100 corporations and provide peace of mind for CareGuard members.

Ametros complies with all technology standards, and its security measures are continually independently verified as HIPAA-compliant (for handling personal health information) and PCI-compliant (for handling payments).

How our security works with CareGuard:

The funds are placed in a separate interest-bearing account under the name and Social Security Number or Tax ID Number of the injured party. Ametros acts as the custodian, managing the incoming bills and outgoing payments. Since the funds are placed under the individual claimant's name, the funds will be protected should Ametros ever become insolvent.

Funds are placed in a separate checking account. The funds are never pooled. Each account is insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) up to $250,000.

We are compliant with industry best practices and train our team on security protocols. We also hire third parties to independently conduct routine audits of our financials, technology systems, and policies and procedures to ensure our security is solid at all times.

Ametros takes the safety and security of its members' funds seriously. Contact us at anytime with questions.
